

Since Indiana passed the bill allowing us to put a "do not disturb" sign on our telephone my day is interrupted by annoying telephone calls much, much less. The requests to be placed on "do not call" lists were rarely if ever adhered to. One telemarketer called me three days in row from AT&T despite my repeated requests not to be called again. According local ordinance if I place a no soliciting sign by my front door, I may press charges against violaters. This bill sponsored by my state legislature allows me to place a "no soliting" sign on my telephone. Please don't take that away from me. I get enough junk mail through the postal service and spam on the internet. Phone solicitors invade my privacy when they call and interrupt my family dinner, my son's nap, or the good part of a movie.

Thank you,
